Coffee Paintings

Dear readers,

Thank you for purchasing my coffee-table book. It contains a number of floral paintings painted with coffee.

I decided to use coffee as painting medium in this project because I've been studying this technique for quite some time now. Painting with coffee is similar to painting with liquid watercolours. The preliminary sketches were drawn with a brown coloured pencil to keep the overall image monochromatic and then coloured in with different variations of coffee mixtures. Because of the similarity to working with watercolours I could completely rely on my knowledge regarding the techniques so the experience in working with this rather unusual medium was the main focus of this project.

Now, please enjoy my works.

Yours,

Kevin Bendorf
